Mr. Grizzard is said to reside on Railroad street Decatur and is in the employ of the Dixie Construction company.

The occurrence, it is understood, happened on one of the downtown thoroughfares toward the Union depot where it is thought Mr. Grizzard was on his way to board a Southern train to go to his work.

Debate On Warren Resumed Today

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The dispute over Charles B. Warren's nomination to be attorney general, was resumed today in the senate.

Chairman Cummins, of the judiciary committee, defended the nominee against the charges that they have been brought against him, while the burden of opposition was taken over by Senator Reed, democrat of Missouri.

Senator Cummins declared the whole argument of those who opposed confirmation, rested on a supposition that Mr. Warren would not faithfully execute the laws, just because he had been faithful to one client in private life, the senator said his enemies believed he would not be faithful to another.

JASPER MEN ARE HELD FOLLOWING FLOGGING PARTY

Three Placed in Walker County Jail After Interview

RAWHIDE WHIP USED ON CLERK

Car Is Stopped on Road By Band Sheriff Is Informed

(Associated Press)

JASPER, Ala., March 10.—Three men were held in the Walker County jail this morning charged with being members of the masked and hooded mob which late Monday night took George Tallant hotel clerk, into the woods and flogged him with a rawhide whip.

Tallant was under the care of a physician Tuesday morning in a serious condition.

The only known motive for the flogging is the outspoken criticisms of Tallant against the Ku Klux Klan.

The flogging occurred about ten o'clock Tuesday night on the Bankhead highway three miles west of Jasper, Tallant with J. E. Macon, James Wyatt and Herbert Macon were returning from McCullom, where the elder Macon is an employee of the McCullom mining company. The other three men had gone there after him.

According to the story told Sheriff Killgore, a band of at least 30 men, with forms and faces completely masked, stopped the four men in a stretch of woods. At first it is said the four men were told they had been stopped by mistake but to wait a few minutes.

Several leaders of the hooded mob then conferred, returning, it is said, they commanded Tallant to alight. Eight of them then led him about 100 yards into the woods, while others kept watch over the three men.

Tallant was tied to a tree, whipped by each of the eight men with a rawhide whip, while one of them stood with a gun in Tallant's mouth to prevent him from crying out. Untying him, they dragged him back to the road and dumped him into the Macon car.

No reason was given, Tallant told Sheriff Killgore for the beating. As soon as Tallant had been brought to town, Sheriff Killgore and his deputies questioned him at his home. Following this interview they arrested Earl Upton, Homer E. Sanderson and O. C. McCoy.

CARTERSVILLE MAN ARRESTED

George Collas Found By the Searchers A Living Flame

(Associated Press)

GADSDEN, Ala., March 10.—George Collas, of Gadsden was found, with his clothes ablaze and dying from eight bullet wounds, in a ditch near Cartersville, Ga., early this morning, according to messages received here.

He died shortly afterward, but before expiring he gave officers information that led to the arrest of John Gronos, of Cartersville and Gadsden as the slayer.

After fatally wounding Collas in a quarrel over a woman, it is alleged, Gronos poured gasoline over the clothes of his victim and applied a match.

The two men left here Monday afternoon to drive to Cartersville. Shortly before reaching their destination it is believed the two men quarrelled. People living near the scene of the shooting reported they heard several shots fired about two o'clock Tuesday morning. Rushing out they saw an automobile speed away and flames arising from a clump of bushes by the side of the road.

In the bushes they found Collas, a living flame and dying. He lived two hours.

Acting upon information given by the dying Collas the sheriff of Cartersville, according to information reaching here, arrested Gronos at his Cartersville home. Gronos has refused to talk.

Collas has lived in Gadsden 20 years. He is a native of Greece and a cook. A wife and two children survive him.

Line To Connect Cities and Shoals

The cities of Albany and Decatur and the Tri-Cities of Florence-Sheffield and Tuscumbia are to be connected by a bus line running by way of Leighton, Town Creek and Courtland. The bus line is thought to be ready for use by April 1st.

This is the second attempt to connect the Twin Cities and the Tri-Cities. The first attempt was made by way of Athens and down the Rogersville road. At that time the Decatur-Courtland-Tuscumbia pike was well nigh impossible. At this time however there remains but about seven miles of difficult roadway between here and the shoals cities and it is thought the project can be made a success.

CHARGE THAT ELDER WAS ANNOYING OVER CAMPAIGN EXPENSE

Rabbi Browne Said To Have Demanded Money's Return

IS PAROLED INTO HIS OWN CUSTODY

Arrested Today By The Secret Service Officials

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 10.—Rabbi E. H. Browne, 72, head of the American Jewish Seventy Elders, and pastor of Temple Zion in the Bronx, was arrested today on a warrant in which the complainants, Calvin Coolidge, Mrs. Coolidge and Frank Stearns, charge him with annoying the President.

It is charged that the Rabbi inflicted upon the complainants an avalanche of letters, demanding he be reimbursed for half of $25,000 which he asserts the American Jewish Seventy Elders spent in campaigning for President Coolidge last fall.

Rabbi Browne was arrested by secret service agents and arraigned in Yorkville court.

When the Rabbi produced apparently authentic letters from former president McKinley, Harrison, Roosevelt and Harding, he was paroled in his own custody without bail for examination Monday.

The secret service agents testified that the Coolidges and Mr. Stearns had received a great number of letters from Rabbi Browne demanding they pay him $12,500 and that they had replied to many of these letters.

Rabbi Browne claimed that he was the only surviving pallbearer at the funeral of President Grant and that he had once employed the late President Harding as a private secretary. In 1888, he said, Mr. Harding had just taken over the Marion Star and the Rabbi, who was supporting Benjamin Harrison for president, brought the Ohio to New York as his secretary during the campaign.

He exhibited a letter, signed with President Harding's name, congratulating him upon his birthday and recalling old times.

Rabbi Browne said that at the request of Tammany Hall he had held a convention of the Seventy Elders last year when Governor Smith was named as their democratic presidential choice. When Smith failed to nomination at the national convention Rabbi Browne switched to President Coolidge and spent the $25,000 campaigning for him, the Rabbi said.

He added he thought the President would "go halves" with the elders.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The case of Rabbi E. B. M. Browne, of New York charged with the personal care of the executive.

Efforts were made to settle the case without court action, but it was said the Rabbi would not agree to desist from sending letters to the white house.

White house officials expressed surprise that Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were named as complainants, explaining that scores of letters, which have been received from the Rabbi, have been referred entirely to under-secretaries at the office. Letters from Rabbi Browne have been coming to the white house for years, it was said.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl in my teens. I am in love with a man fifty years old. He is wealthy and I think that he would be good to me. He is a widower and has five children. My parents object to my marrying him. What must I do? Do you think we could be happy? WAITING.

Listen to your parents, for now as always, they are right.

Demand for G. F. P. Greatest On Record Say Many Druggists

Young and Old Women Alike Being Benefited By Phenomenal Medicine.

Druggists in every part of the country are now freely discussing the sensational success which St. Joseph's G. F. P. is having on account of its direct effect on the dreaded malady—catarrh, the enemy of 90 per cent of the girls and women in such cities like this.

In referring to the unequalled demand for G. F. P. here, a well known Main Street druggist who has the distinction of being one of the biggest retail druggists in this part of the country, said among other things that—"the demand for St. Joseph's G. F. P. has agreeably surprised us. While we had heard about the success it is having in other cities where it has been introduced, we had no idea it would reach the proportions it has here already.

"If anyone had told us G. F. P. would be as popular as it is, we would not have believed it. It is hard to understand it, but when women come in and telephone us for G. F. P. all day long, there is something back of it all which we can't exactly see, but it must be a mighty strong force.

"Judging from the repeat sales and the many expressions of satisfaction and happiness made by those who are using G. F. P., it must have that unusual merit we had been told about. The girls and women who are buying it are not confined to any one class either. Rich women who can well afford the best attention to be had, but who had never been able to get any relief; as well as girls and women in poor circumstances make up the crowds who come getting G. F. P., and praising it as they talk to their friends."—Adv.

I have sent a message to the chief."

"About what?" "To come to see me and be prepared to conduct us back to their settlement. To make friends." "Friends! Those savages—" "It's necessary. They leave us alone now through fear, which probably won't last. They will hate what they fear; and in time only the hate may remain. That's not the right keynote for a happy life here; is it?" He looked quickly up at her, with a smile full of hidden meaning. "No." She flushed a little; then gave a dreary laugh. "But I can't imagine what could be, in these circumstances."

"Can't you?" He looked away at the water tumbling over the huge boulder, catching here and there flashes of sunlight through the network of branches overhead. "You were going to find out all about that, in crowded cities; weren't you?" "About what?" "What the keynote is which you have found missing to the vast harmony of creation."

She glanced at him in pleased surprise. "How nicely you express it! I never realized it so clearly as that; it was all vague. Yes, I suppose that is what I felt. It's strange, but I haven't felt it so much here."

She watched him collect his fruit. "Have you found the keynote?" she asked boldly. He looked at her for a moment thoughtfully; then answered, guardedly: "I know what it is. And I have only fully realized its necessity since coming here! We all use substitutes out in the world. It has a lot of branches—or, rather, sub-keys. Perhaps few people ever discover it."

Well, Barbara, have your dip. He was about to turn away; but, acting upon some impulse, paused behind her. "Is it all very dreary for you—here? Do you hate it so much?"

There was a wonderful, unusual gentleness in his voice—an undercurrent of something, almost yearning, which touched her unaccountably. "It's no worse for me than for you," she replied, responding to his tone in the natural generosity of her heart. He made no reply for a moment. Then, lightly, he pressed her shoulder with his hand.

"Come and tell me when the loneliness is too bad." And he was gone, his footsteps dying away upon the loose twigs of bamboo cane.

She undressed and stood, fair and slim as Psyche, beside the water; a fresh interest awakened in her companion. As she lowered herself into the shimmering ripples, she resolved to follow up this talk, to press through this thin piece of wall; and, by a process of subtle siege, win the friendship which all at once seemed extremely desirable.

But, as usual, disappointment met her efforts when next she assailed the wall. The gap proved to be firmly patched up, even barred across. It was impregnable. Baffled, she could only finger the bars and wonder.

The old chief appeared, keeping a safe distance, soon after receiving the white man's message. But an outbreak of sickness was raging in the settlement; therefore, much to the girl's relief, their visit was postponed. Having ascertained from him that no trade was carried on with other islands, that no ships came to the south, Croft threw himself with renewed zest into the building of a new hut. As if to drown all thought, he worked incessantly, sometimes moodily silent, sometimes seeming keenly to enjoy the new comradeship that had established itself, little by little, between them.

A month or more passed before the native chief's wrinkled black face appeared again, two warriors in attendance. Croft thrust a hand through her arm, when they joined the natives; and again she was conscious of the old magnetic stimulation of his personality, which had sustained her during the first terrible nights and days.

VI Fear and curiosity formed the chief elements of the unusual animation in the natives' settlement. Great bustle of preparation was in progress—spearing of fish, gathering of fruit, by men; while the smoke of many fires, ascending into the still air, indicated the occupation of the women.

Had not the chief ordered unlimited feasting to pacify the stomachs, music to delight the senses of the Terrible Ones? Bahuaka, the stone god, looked incongruous among garlands of trailing vine and the feathery leaves of tree ferns. Before him stood the sacrificial table—a massive tree trunk stripped of its bark, upon which was piled a heap of dried sticks and undergrowth.

Bahuaka ever demanded a sacrifice at full moon, and the moon was now at the full; and the people trembled, for the selection had been reserved for the Great White Chief, and who could tell what ruthless cruelties he might not exact?

12 Years Ago TODAYFrom The Daily of
March 10, 1913

A strong sermon was preached yesterday by Rev. K. N. Mathews, at the First Methodist church, Decatur.

The Delite and Star theatres have been sold by Parker and Alexander to R. M. Lipscomb and H. B. Cagle, according to announcement made today.

The furniture and hardware store of Britain Brothers, Second avenue, was robbed last night of about $125 worth of stock.

Monrie Looney and Miss Belle Ballard were married in the probate court office this morning by Judge William E. Skeggs.

The New Decatur council will meet in regular session tonight.

John L. Brock, Noah Brock and J. W. Cunningham are expected to return from New York this week.

A DAILY PRAYER.—We pray Thee that Thou mayest enable us so to live that we will not fear to commit ourselves to our eternal home.

Wouldn't an optimist have a good time watching a couple of pessimists fight.

New York will soon be up in the air. A building, 80 stories in height is proposed.

Several defendants in Albany police court are just realizing how dear is an automobile tag, or lack of one.

One good thing about inauguration day, it made Calvin Coolidge talk.

Uncle Sam soon will be adopting a well known advertising slogan for his post office department. "Costs more, worth it."

The Daily staff likes to be remembered, but Judge Horton held with us, that four jurors out of fifty summoned was a bit more than the Daily should furnish.

Fashionable New York apartments appear about as safe a place to be in now as a Bowery saloon was fifty years ago.

A uniformed band for Kamram Grotto, would be a fine thing for the Albany-Decatur Grotto club. Let us all hope the prophets belonging to the local club get what they are seeking.

The lawyers have their task cut out for them. It is estimated that about 20,000 new laws will be proposed in the various state legislatures this year, with some 4,000 or 5,000 likely to be enacted. When is some legislature going to call a halt and start all over again?

Gutzon Borglum doesn't necessarily have to be on Stone Mountain to use a hammer and chisel. He has demonstrated that he wasn't the man for the job, by his conduct since the little unpleasantness has arisen. A man with a job like the Stone Mountain job must have more than an ability as a stone cutter, he must have a heart for his work.

People who think there is no such thing as thrift in America today, might do well to study the figures of the New York Trust company, showing that in the United States last October there were 11,184 building and loan associations, with the total steadily increasing. The total membership in these associations was nearly 8,000,000 and increasing. There was a ten per cent increase in the organizations during the year.

The Bethlehem Steel Corporation is giving us something to think about. They have a plan, whereby employees, by secret ballot, elect other employees to represent them in settling disputes with the company. The electors are restricted to those employees who are over 18 years of age and who have taken out their first citizenship papers. Ninety three per cent of those eligible to vote, actually cast their ballots. As a result of the successful operation of this plan 3,300 cases of dispute have been settled. How much better congress would function, as the representatives of the American public if 93 per cent of the qualified voters actually voted.

OTHER COMMUNITIES SUFFERING FROM PARASITE OF THE MAIL ORDER HOUSES

The amount of money which annually goes out of Albany-Decatur to mail order houses, no doubt, would be astonishing, if the totals could be obtained and added together. Every investigation of this out-go has resulted here-to-fore in startling revelations.

same complaint that we make here is echoed in many other sections. A Commercial Club note in the Demopolis Times recently averred that an average of $1,000 every week is being sent from that to mail order houses. Selma like Demopolis, "long has been the rich field for exploitation by the so-called bargain houses" says the Selma Times Journal.

The Lawrence County Times discovers in the Prairie Lumberman the following "ten commandments of the mail order houses:

1. You shall sell your farm produce for cash where you can, for we buy nothing from you.
 2. You shall believe in us, and hope for the best because we do not know you personally.
 3. You shall send your money to us in advance so we can buy the goods from the factory with your money; you may have to wait a few weeks, but that is our method.
 4. You shall get help from your nearest city or village to build good roads so you may easily haul your goods from the depot, but do not ask help from us—we don't help to build good roads.
 5. You may buy church bells and altar utensils from us and send the money in advance—that is our rule.
 6. You shall get all the help you can from the business men in your neighborhood. Although we may have more profit from you than they have, it is against our rules to give to the churches.
 7. You shall convert your neighbors also to, your faith in us, for we have room for more money.
 8. You shall look at the pretty pictures in our catalog as often as you can, so as to strengthen your desire for things you do not need, but which you may order with other goods to save freight. Send us all your ready cash so that you may not have any left to buy necessities from your home dealers.
 9. You shall believe us rather than your home merchant for we want your trade. We get to be millionaires on your support. Don't be bluffed.
 10. You shall call on the business people of your city for help and credit if you meet with hard luck and sickness. Its your money we want; we don't know you unless orders are accompanied by cash.
- Commandment number six reminds The Daily of a story told not very long ago by a merchant who had been suffering at the expense of mail order competition, which had been taking away from him, and other merchants engaged in the same line of business, orders which they had every right to be favored with.
- This merchant said that the ladies came into his establishment and requested a donation to a worthy fund which they were raising. The merchant contributed and then suggested to the visitors in a friendly manner, that perhaps they could swell their fund if they would request every member of the organization, who had traded with mail-order houses, to write to the company they had bought from, explain to them the worthiness of the fund being raised, then perhaps they could obtain a donation.
- If these people will write to the various mail order concerns, quite likely they will receive a lesson in buying at home that could be given them in no other way.

BORGNUM APPEARS TO BE A VETERAN OF MANY CONTROVERSIES ABOUT ART

The controversy which the Stone Mountain Memorial Association has been engaged in with Gutzon Borglum, sculptor, who was recently dismissed by the Association, appears now not to be the first in which the sculptor has been one of the principals. The Brooklyn Eagle publishes a short history of Borglum's career, indicating that by this time the sculptor could qualify as a veteran of artistic outbreaks.

"Temperamental Gutzon Borglum, sculptor, has again raised the wind," The Eagle says, and, after explaining the status of the trouble with the storm center of controversy before this, either in the art world or out of it. His outbreaks have been frequent. This is the second time he has filled the role of an iconoclast."

During the construction of the cathedral of St. John the Divine, about 15 years ago, Borglum was commissioned to make two angels.

The Eagle says:

He made two angels for the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine about fifteen years ago. They were the figures of the Annunciation and Resurrection angels. They were the only angels, out of half a hundred, which had been made by Borglum. In creating them he upset well established tradition, since angels have usually been depicted as male figures, the angels mentioned in the Bible have masculine names and, according to Biblical lore, these two angels were named Gabriel and Michael.

Borglum held that angels were emblematic of sweetness and light, and that therefore he did well to give them female figures and expression. However, the cathedral did not want them and they were criticized severely. So he took a hammer and broke them into pieces. He admitted afterwards that he was vain of them, said he felt worse than a vandal, but asked what there was for him to do, since the figures had been rejected. His departure from tradition and his iconoclasm created a lot of talk.

Borglum again caused a "flurry" in the world of art when he attacked the Washington monument as "an enlargement of Cleopatra's needle" and asserted the Lincoln Memorial was "a $2,000,000 Greek temple with Lincoln Memorial on the door mat."

In 1913, the Eagle asserts, Borglum resigned from the Association of American Painters and Sculptors and declined to exhibit at 69th regiment armory, because "good men and good work were ignored."

Two more years and 1915 found Borglum engaged in a heated controversy with the municipal art commission of Chicago over his statue to the late Governor John P. Altgeld. The design was criticized, but Borglum's confidence in his own talent was not even scorched by the criticism. He is quoted as saying:

"I forgot more about sculptural art over-night than any of your Chicago municipal art commissioners knows in a lifetime. I shall stand for that monument and the art interpretation of Altgeld's character against the commission and all Chicago back of it."

Then the war came on and Borglum attracted the spotlight by making charges against the aviation construction program. With the return of peace, he seems to have returned to his art, but judging his mental attitude by recent developments, he is still amply supplied with pepper.

The Association was declared in Saturday dispatches to be in connection with the court proceedings which had been instigated against Borglum. The Association, however, is represented as being determined not to effect a reconciliation with the sculptor.

It is interesting to note, in connection with the Association's actions, that it has the backing of many public and semi-public organizations of Atlanta, where headquarters of the Association are located. Resolutions endorsing the Association's attitude have been adopted by the mayor and council, Fulton county board of commissioners, the Atlanta chamber of commerce, the Presidents' club of Atlanta, John B. Gordon camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans, Atlanta Hotel Men's Association, Exchange club of Atlanta, Atlanta Rotary club, Atlanta Federation of Women's clubs, Atlanta Ladies' Aid, M. E. church, and many others.

The suitor, bony and ugly of face, was pleading his case before Sallie. "You know I am a self-made man, Sallie. I've made myself exactly what I am."

"But you didn't have any looking glass when you made your face, did you?" piped up Sallie's four year old brother, and unobserved but interested listener.

The old Greeks used to have kissing contests to see who could execute the most graceful kiss. Them days is gone forever.

Diogenes, in broad daylight, was walking down Main street, Athens. In each hand he carried lanterns and as he walked he shot skyrockets into the air. A friend hailed him. "I thought the papers said you found that honest man you we're looking for." "I did," replied the philosopher. "But he wants to get married and this hunting an honest woman is one devil of a job."

COOLIDGE APPROVES REPUBLICAN ACTION

Organized Congress Is Best For Nation, He Believes

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 10.—President Coolidge fully supports the action of senate republicans in replacing insurgents in important committee places with regulars, and considers that the question at issue is one of making it possible for his party to govern the country.

The whole question, as the president sees it, was whether congress was to be organized in such a fashion that the republican party could carry out its campaign pledges.

The chairmanship of the important committees and a majority of each one, he believes, should go automatically to members of the dominant party, and there should be no objection to the exclusion of others from these responsibilities.

COST VS. RESULTS

The COST of advertising in the CLASSIFIED COLUMNS is very small indeed, compared with the RESULTS that are obtained. Frequently people call and ask that an advertisement that COST only a few cents be taken out because the RESULTS have brought a buyer or a seller in a few hours after the Daily is on the streets.

PRICES

Minimum of 25 words. No advertisement taken for less than 25 cents. 25 words, 25c, one time; 50 cents three times; $1.00 six times. One cent is charged for each additional word. Classified columns are run on a strictly cash basis. Cash with order.

Champ Lives Up to Reputation For His Double-barreled Action; Commish in Hole

Sing a song of six pence Pocket full of fight, Jack and Tom and Harry What a sorry plight.

That is the mournful ditty being sung by the New York Boxing commission this morning after the main man had brought them the acceptance of the champion to battle Tommy Gibbons and Harry Wills. The Commission forced Dempsey to accept a fight at once. They declared that he must fight Wills. Jack accepted and with it he placed therein a provision that Tommy Gibbons was also a likely candidate. So he is going to fight them both and the commission is buried to the hilt in trying for a decision as to who gets the first fight.

Eddie Kane says that Gibbons will fight Wills at the first opportunity and pull the fight game out of the middle. Dempsey's manager wants $750,000 for his mans next fight. Tex Rickard, the only logical man to stage the fight, says that he will not pay any such price for a fight. Jack Kearns accepted the Gibbons fight specifically and reminds the Boxing Commission that the acceptance of the Wills fight has been on file in the offices of the commission since that dusky challenger first laid down his ultimatum. Further, the champions manager says that the boxing heads have nothing to do with the fights unless they pay the price for the bouts.

Now what is to be done is left up to the boxing commission. The champion has not acted in defiance of their demands. He has accepted every everything that they requested. He is ready to fight. It looks very much as if they have dug a hole and pulled the dirt in on top of themselves.

Second prize of another fob will be awarded the winner of a roll off match for high score between David Jones and N. M. Speake. Jones recorded second high single match average in tournament just over, while Speake won second honors for high single score. Their records were 173 and 207 pins respectively.

Benson Corrects Error in Collier's

W. W. Benson, superintendent of the Decatur schools, has written a letter to the Age-Herald, enclosing correspondence, correcting an error which recently appeared in Collier's magazine. The letter follows:

I ask as a champion of historical accuracy and of fair play to publish the enclosed correspondence, which explains itself.

I do not doubt that Collier's will correct the "grievous error" in an "early issue"—have not been able to find a copy here this week—but in the meantime the slur on the gallant father of Robert E. Lee will have gone to thousands of readers, many of them too young or too unread to recognize the falsity of it.

If the South does not protect its heroic dead from careless treatment by magazine writers and if it does not demand prompt and full apologies from the offending magazine, who will do so?

W. W. BENSON.

March 7, 1925.

Letter to Collier's (Copy)

In your issue of February 21 Mr. F. P. Stockbridge writes a readable piece about George Washington as a real estate dealer. But he spoils it by an amazing blunder. He says that Washington "cussed out" White Horse Harry Lee at the battle of Monmouth. It was General Charles Lee, an adventurous Englishman who had espoused the American cause a short time before, that was the object of Washington's wrath on that occasion. The misrepresentation of Light Horse Harry Lee is all the more reprehensible, as it was he who later originated the famous tribute to Washington, "First in War," etc.

As Mr. Stockbridge is so reckless in confusing names of the Revolutionary era, it might be well to suggest to him that it was not Thomas Jefferson who played Rip Van Winkle, nor Patrick Henry who wrote short stories, nor John Adams who was driven out the Garden of Eden. Yours truly,

W. W. BENSON
Mr. W. W. Benson, Decatur Public Schools, Decatur, Ala.
Dear Mr. Benson: It was indeed a grievous error which Mr. Stockbridge committed when he said Light Horse Harry Lee got the scolding at Monmouth. Of course it was General Charles Lee. We regret that the error was not caught in editing the article.

We are publishing one of the many letters we have received correcting the mistake in an early issue of Collier's. Very truly yours,

HELEN A. LANDRETH,
Editorial Department
